Tejasvi Nau-Adhiitam-Astu Maa
Vidvissaavahai Om Shaantih Om Shaantih
Om Shaantih"

What is the purpose of Indian philosophy?

In Indian philosophy , we ask :

"How can we free ourselves from the affliction of life?". A vast question that implies many others to which Indian philosophies will attempt to provide answers.

Darshan

Darshan means "vision" in Sanskrit and is used to designate a school of Indian philosophy.

9 Darshan are accepted by Indian philosophy. These 9 Darshan offer us a "divine vision of reality".

These 9 schools can be divided into two distinct streams.

We find the Astik Darshan and the Nastik Darshan. These two currents differ in their interpretations of the Vedas.

Vedas :

The Vedas are a collection of texts which, according to tradition, were revealed (through hearing, Shruti) to Indian sages called Rishi. This "revealed knowledge" has been transmitted orally from Rishi to Rishi within Vedism, Brahmanism and Hinduism over an indeterminate period.

The Rishi are considered as great yogis who, through the Vedas, share the same vision of Truth. The Vedas can be described as a set of spiritual laws.

The book containing these laws was written by

Rishi Veda Vyasa.

Astik Darshan

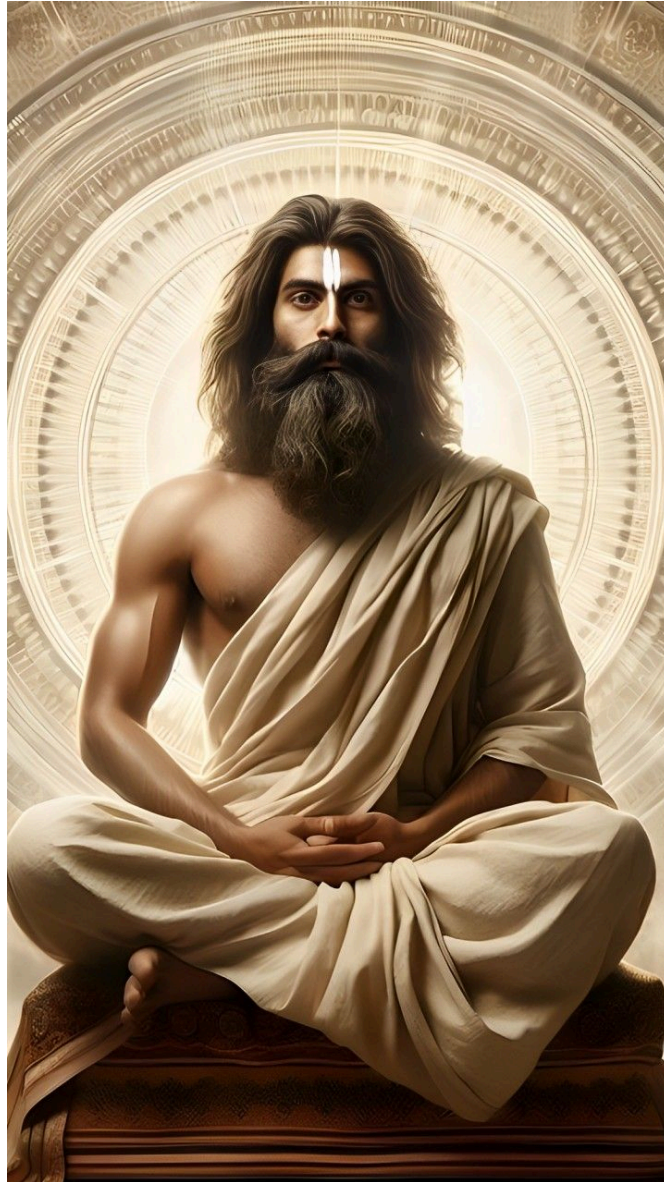

These are the Indian schools of thought that accept the Vedas in their entirety.

The Darshan

Astik are as follows:

1. Samkhya - Kapil - Yoga theory
2. Yoga - Patanjali - Samkhya practice
3. Nyaya - Akshapada Gautama - the Hindu school of reasoning
4. Vaisheshika - Kanada - liberation through knowledge of Nature

5. Mimansa - Jaimini - an in-depth, critical study of the Veda
6. Vedanta - Vyasa - Conclusion of the Vedas

Nastik Darshan

These are Indian schools of thought that question certain points of the Vedas.

The Darshan

Nastik are as follows:

1. Bouddhisme - The first Buddha - the 4 noble truths and the eight-fold path.
2. Jainisme - Mahaveer Jain - the school of non-violence and ultimate respect all life
3. Chavrak - The most fatalistic school, its motto: "eat, drink and be happy".

In this book we will mainly focus on the Yoga Darshan.
