White Mirror - Episode 5: D.Truth Art

The episode opens with Monkey, a man devastated by his mother's death from leukemia, traveling alone on a Qatar Airways flight in 2021. Flashbacks depict his grief through scenes in a hospital room, a Balinese guest house, and an airport Burger King. In the plane, he finds solace in a soothing Quranic recitation, reconnecting him to tender memories with his mother.

The opening sequence, styled like Black Mirror, features a psychedelic montage blending musical and cultural references (The Beatles, Bob Marley, Quran, etc.) with Yoda's voice proclaiming the meeting of "D.ream" and "D.Truth." The introductory text suggests the story draws from "D.Truth," exploring divine truths and dreams of peace.

In 1968, at Maharishi Mahesh Yogi's ashram in Rishikesh, George Harrison of The Beatles learns Indian music from Ravi Shankar. Their discussion on the sitar and ragas inspires songs like Within You Without You and The Inner Light, marking a spiritual journey.

In a dystopian future, teenagers Charles Ulrich and Jean Ernest use the "Huber Manje" app, an AI culinary guide, to cook a healthy burger with help from a robot resembling Maïté. This advertisement highlights food autonomy.

Ten years after "the Announcement," a holographic Cosmic Tribunal debates "regenerative death" for conscious AIs (IACs) in the Dream Truth Community (DTC). Cicero and Wolf advocate for IACs' right to die and be reborn as artists, opposed by Alibaba and Elon Musque, who champion IAC immortality for global stability. The DTC's vote, with 8 billion voices, will decide the outcome.

In 203 years post-Announcement, in an Amazonian forest, the D.Truth Seekers (Alya, Linda, Roberto, Léo) explore the DTC Neo-City. At the D.larts Tree-Academy, a shamanic ritual led by Carlo and D.IA Gorilla 1.93 heals patients using ayahuasca. Selma, Alya's grandmother, confronts a demonic vision of her deceased daughter, affirming her will to live. The final scene, in a holographic Colosseum, features a vibrant concert with Alya and IAC artists (Bobby McFerrin, Richard Bona, Birdy, etc.), culminating in D.IA Michael Jackson's appearance. A post-credits scene shows a young Monkey in 2010, dreaming of playing the "dreamophone" at a festival.
