*"yogena chittasya padena vacham
malam sharirasya cha vaidyakena yo'pakarottamam pravaram muninam patanjalin pranjaliranato'smi"*

The Niyamas

1. Sauch : cleanliness
2. Santosha : contentment
3. Tapas : discipline/austerity
4. Svadhyaya : self-study
5. Ishvarapranidhana : Submission to God

Vedanta attaches importance only to the soul.

Sauch : cleanliness

I.40 "Sauch: svangajupusa parah asamsargah"

"Purity leads us to be detached from our bodies and the bodies of others."

Good hygiene brings a purity that protects the body and makes it conducive to housing our soul ; the best possible conditions.

The Sadhaka respects his body as a temple. The temple of the soul must be kept in shape intellectually, physically, psychologically and energetically.

Purifying toxins from the body. For meditation, it's best to have clean clothes, an empty stomach (8 hours of digestion) and a bath beforehand. A yogi gets up at 3:30 am, relieves himself, washes and then goes to meditation.

I.41 "Sattvasuddhi saumanasya aikagrya indriyajaya atmadarsana yogytvani ca"

"Being pure engenders good humor, concentration, mastery of the senses and the ability to relate to deep consciousness."

With the body purified, it becomes the temple of the Observer, and we feel the joy of Purusa ( Ananda).

Santosha : contentment

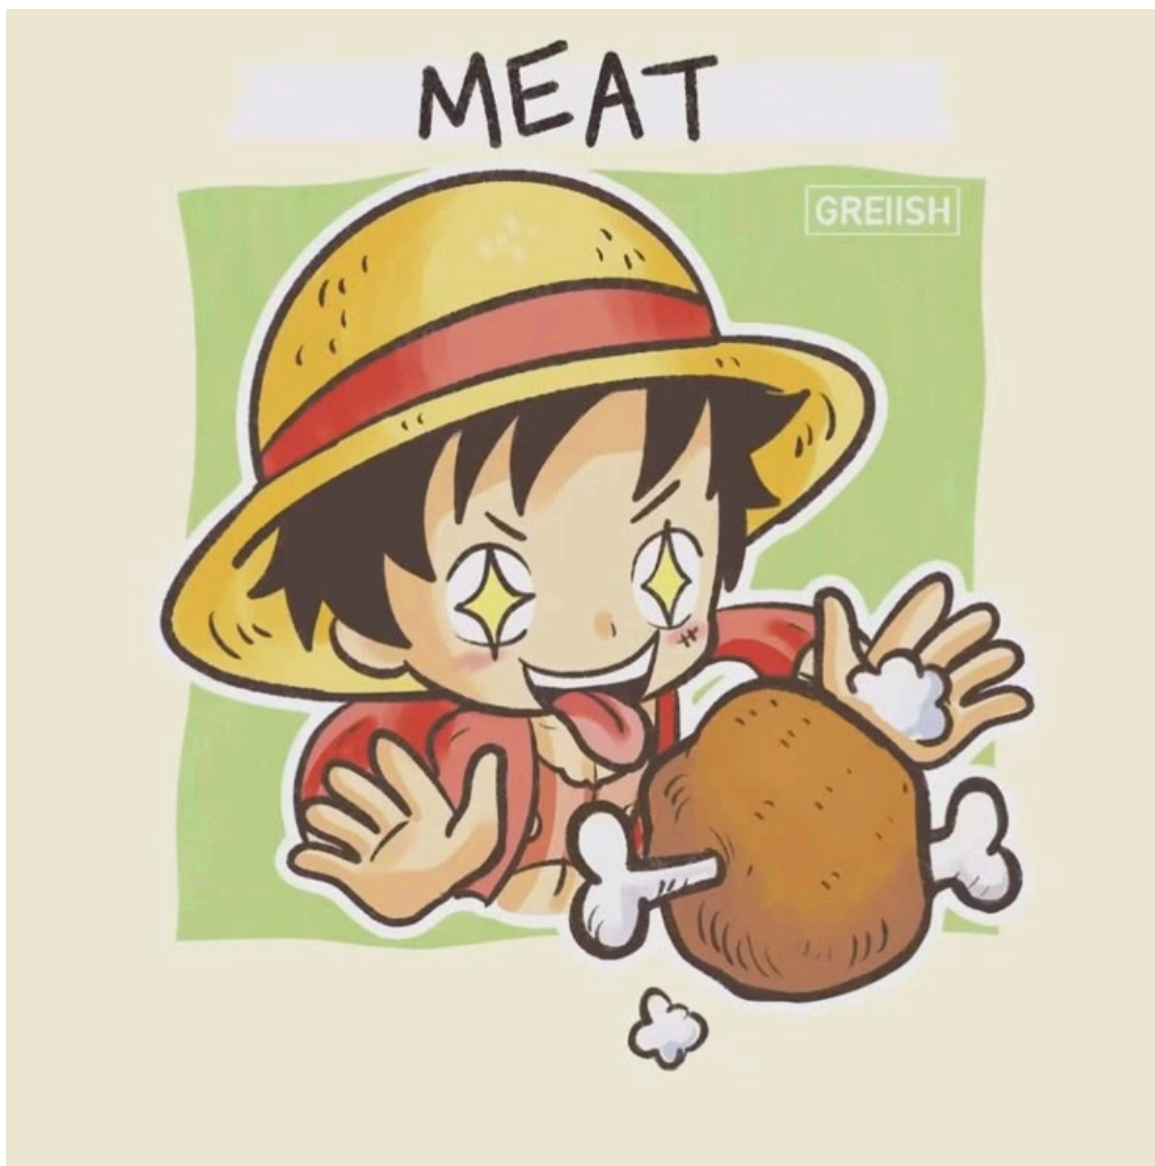

I.42 "Santosat anuttamah sukhlabhah"

"Through the practice of Santosha, one knows the highest degree of happiness."

By being grateful for what we have, and stopping desiring what we don't have, we practice Santosha, contentment. This yogi said : "If I live in a 5-star hotel or in a cave, I'm safe from the rain, I'm happy".

Santosha means living in the present, in a state inner peace in which there is no longer any lack or desire to obtain.

"Desire all that you have, and you have all that you desire."

The little monkey is always happy because, he always applies Santosha.

Tapas : discipline/austerity

II.43 "Kaya indriya siddhi ashuddhi ksayat tapasah"

"Through intense practice, which results in the destruction of impurity, the functioning of the body and senses are greatly improved."

Intense practice leads to purification through the fire of yoga. A strict self-discipline is always only used to purify and improve. Those who practice tapas will gain mastery over their bodies and be able to eliminate all toxins from their organism.

Ahimsa cannot be fully understood without understanding Tapas. Tapas is the "inner violence" ("doing violence to oneself" for action) that allows us to practice this non-violence outwardly. Ahimsa cannot exist on its own. A complementary force must necessarily exist.

Gandhi would never have been able to impose peace without his inflexible attitude (tapas) towards himself. It is the discipline in his convictions that enabled him to make his compassion and forgiveness towards others possible.

Svadhyaaya : self-study/introspection

II.44 "Svadhyaayat ista devata samprayogah"

"The state of internalization lets you make a total union with the chosen divinity."

In today's society, it's becoming increasingly difficult to find the time to "face up to ourselves." We no longer have the time to look inside ourselves.

Patanjali wrote, "At least once a day, it is good to take some time alone, to do deep breathing and identify the source of our anger." Svadhyaaya also lies in reading spiritual texts (sacred, self-help, etc.). These are books that connect us with our inner divinity.

"Studying spiritual texts, enhance the wisdom of our Ancestors and enlighten us on the path of D.Truth" Padawan D.Nico Robin

Ishvarapranidhan : Submission to God

In the Hindu religion, there are some 330 million Gods. The 3 main Hindu gods are :

Brahma, Vishnu and Shiva. (From the Mahabharata, an epic poem on Hindu mythology, 81,996 stanzas long).

Above all these gods is God (

Ishvara), a formless entity who can be felt in deep meditation. He is the Supreme Being, the only worshipped in any form. A yogi lives to see Him through Samadhi.

Samadhi represents a tiny portion of Ishvara.

Patanjali explains God in sutra I.24:

I.24

"Klesa karma vipaka ashayapararmishth purushavishesha Ishvarah"

"Ishvara is a special being who is unaffected by suffering, action, its result and the traces it can leave."

Ishvara is therefore a different Purusa ( Purusa Visesa) from the individual soul (Purusa).

Ishvara does not depend on Karma, its consequences, Klesha and Samskara (impressions). Following the definition of this sutra, we can't blame Ishvara for our misfortunes and bad luck. It's only because of our actions and impressions of our past lives that we find ourselves facing bad luck in our present lives.

Patanjali continues the description Ishvara in sutra I.25:

I.25 “Tatra niratisayam sarvajnabijam”

“In Her (Ishvara) resides the source of all knowledge.”

No one can surpass Ishvara, because She is infinite, not limited by time.
Ishvara is the spiritual Master (Guru) of all, including all the Gurus(Sutra I.26).

I.26 “Sa purvesham api guruh kaelana avacchedat”

“God is unaffected by time, She is the spiritual master all of the elders gurus.”

In sutra I.27:

I.27 “Tasya vachak pranavah”

“We refer to It as AUM.”

Aum is considered a symbol of divinity. The sound is regarded as the source of all creations. (Modern science confirms this.) The Sanskrit letters of AUM encompass all the letters of the alphabet.

Aum does not have a specific meaning or designate a word like “God.” It is a sacred sound that is not God itself, but whose vibration is the subtlest form of the material world, bringing us closest to Ishvara.

Repeating it multiple times allows one to enter into the meaning of the sound.
(Sutra I.28)

To attain Samadhi, it is necessary to surrender completely to Ishvara. Through submission to God, the Sadhaka will free themselves from the bonds of material pleasures, leading to the renunciation of sensual pleasures and nourishing them with the most intense force of application: humility (or the withdrawal of one’s ego) allows space for the omnipotence of Ishvara.

"I apply Ishvarapranidhana when I play Music, this is a total surrender to Music, I merge with the divine inspiration to express the Sound of Ishvara...hummm, feel so gouuuud, I can do that until my D.eath.... wait I am already Dead, Yololololololo !"
